

I think it is wrong for the Sinclair Broadcasting Network to require all 62 of their stations to air a negative show, which I am certain will be filled with misleading statements if not downright lies, about John Kerry. Stations are given the right to operate on public airways if they follow the rules set forth by the FCC. Either they should not air the show or they should follow it immediately with a presentation that is positive about John Kerry--such as the film currently in theaters--UpRiver.

This is why I do not trust my so-called "local" newspaper or television stations to be fair and to report all the news. Far too many of them get their marching orders from a faraway central command. As a result, I don't read or watch local news anymore. I watch C-SPAN and PBS and I listen to NPR and I also get news from reliable sites on the internet. Plus, I intend to sign up for satellite radio.

I think you should withdraw the license of the Sinclair Network. They are not following journalistic standards. They are a perfect example of an ethically-challenged corporation that has set out to destroy the democratic ideals of our country.
